Ceremonies available to assist life's journey

HELP FOR THE WAY

Once you have completed the 'Search for Life' course, 'help for the way' is designed for the specific purpose of assisting further steps to take.

For many participants, the programme you have just concluded leaves you in a place where you haven't been before. For instance, you have new information to digest and think about; personal agendas that may need to be addressed or painful experiences that have surfaced 'from no-where'.

You may want to chat over your feelings with someone who can offer you a listening ear and pastoral support. Maybe you know the direction you should take but not sure of the means.

QUIET PLACE Contemplative worship

Come into the quiet and find grace and find peace to restore your soul;.

Imagine a Sunday evening where you walk into a quiet room to the sound of gentle music, the soft glow of candles and the invitation to be quiet and to know God in the depths of your being.

During the hour there will be prayers, symbols, words and music to refresh your soul before the week's work begins again.

Come, if you are seeking a new expression of worship and community: come if you simply seek 'time out' to re-focus and re-energise.

'MOVING ON' CEREMONY

On occasions in life we often come to some critical points in life where we want to make a declaration that we are 'moving on' and we want to leave the past behind. Not that we expect, or would want, maybe, ever to forget, but there nevertheless comes a moment when we need gently to close one chapter in our lives in order that we may begin another.

These occasions, often painful, occur after receiving new understanding on a matter. A course like 'Search for Life' is designed to give you scriptural insights and principles for living and encouraged you to confront experiences or habits from our past.

People have found that the 'Moving On' ceremony that LifeWell offers helps participants mark the transition from looking back to looking forward to what lies ahead.
